

Time for Christians to Follow Their God

Knowing we have been through what some will feel is a great time of stress throughout the latest Presidential competition, we as Christians are admonished through the word of God, what actions we can take that will please Jesus Christ. The leftist or democrats who want to change the form of government from democracy to socialism, and from an autonomous nation to a global economy, have demonstrated the actions of a very sinful prowess. Are they within their rights to protest and shout in the street as well as online? Sure they are. However, I never knew that the first amendment included "freedom of speech for hire".

I believe that freedom of speech was provided as something that individuals were allowed because they themselves felt strongly about an agenda. It is not one that people are paid by the rich to wreak havoc in the streets, shout insults and destroy public and private property, especially when they themselves feel only a need to exchange money for making racket and care very little about the issue themselves.

As Christians are we supposed to follow worldly influence, or are we supposed to be following the will of God and scripture. Aren't we supposed to be an example and a light? The Apostle Paul, who lived in very perilous times, against himself, in Rome and Jewish cities said; pray for those in power that we may live a peaceful life. it seems that many Christians are being caught up in the actions and dress of the world. We have already seen it in sinful immoral actions, and now in the response to the election. Some seem to look only for something bad about President Trump. They don't realize that the limb they are sawing is the same limb that they are being supported by.

. The scripture tells us as Christians, if we see a brother taken over in a fault, pray for them, or restore them. I once wrote to the President telling him to count to ten. It seemed to help for a while, but when a person is being hurt by the actions and lies of others daily, and hour by hour, it is hard to count or be patient. That is when the time comes to pray for those who are in high office, and for those who are of the fellow human race as well as fellow Americans. In this situation it seems that those of the left hate those on the right, who remain for the most part, the silent majority. It seems that this controversial election has turned into hatred, where the only thing sought after is the harm the other side and it's leader, and to seek something harmful. These actions seem more like hate, than love.

. It seems the Socialist left party has nothing but hate, while claiming to be Christians. It seems that they have forgotten that Christians are to be known by their love, and while they are claiming to love those who strike concern from the danger that their creed has brought into America, they seem to love only those who are not citizens, more than they concern themselves with the citizens. They would rather "blow up the White-house" because they learned of a private conversation some ten years ago., They err in finding their place in making the nation as a whole a better place.

. You can look at story by story of the leftist media that is owned by propagandist of one company and find that their stories are based on lies, and intentional misinterpretation of what has been said. It is their job, as they have been heard to say on television to "control the way the people think". It was proven that they were misrepresenting the truth when the predictions of their surveys proved the tremendous untruth about the outcome of the election. Yet, they continue with their surveys and opinions. It has been found in Parliament that the stories about President Trump have not been found to be true by any observation.

. It is high time for the American Christian to stop following the world, and follow their God. Our God tells us through His word, not to hate our President, or hate the opposite political parties, but to love them, We are commanded to pray for those who are taken over in a fault. if indeed we feel like they are. We have allowed our disagreement to began to look like hate. The Apostle Paul admonished us to pray for those in office that we might live peaceably. It is my call as well and yours to call our people to repentance. Therefore I ask all Christians to return to the Christian ethic, and be a light to the world, for so we are called. Follow peace with all man, in as much as it is possible. Pray for others, not allowing strong disagreement to turn into hate and try to destroy them. Let us pray and not get angry because they prayed at a rally, as some of us Christians did. But let it be us saying, Our Father who art in heaven hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom come, THY WILL be done IN EARTH as it is IN HEAVEN.
